AIMS & SCOPE

Critical Public Health is a journal for researchers and practitioners working in public health, health promotion and related fields and brings together international scholarship to provide critical analyses of theory and practice, reviews of literature and explorations of new ways of working. The journal publishes high quality work that is open and critical in perspective and which reports on current research and debates in the field. Critical Public Health encourages an interdisciplinary focus and features innovative analyses. It is committed to exploring and debating issues of equity and social justice - particularly issues of sexism, racism and other forms of oppression.

Originally titled Radical Community Medicine, Critical Public Health has been in existence since 1979 providing 'cutting edge' thinking in public health and related fields. The journal has now moved to a fully international, refereed article format and welcomes contributions from all those wishing to publish work in public health and related areas.
